News in brief

Funds will repair pump station

Romulus City Council members voted to hire Kennedy Industries to make emergency repairs at the Harrison Road pump station at their regular meeting Monday night.

The repairs will cost $5,310, and will require three weeks of work to rectify, according to Tom Wilson, city director of public works.

Kennedy, which has a long relationship with the city, is one of a handful of companies that will make repairs to pumps because most are considered outdated, according to a city official.

The pump station serves the sanitary needs of the Centex subdivision. The repairs will be paid for using funds allocated for sewer repair.

City frees money for police fuel

The Romulus Police Department fuel budget will be expanded by $15,000 because of the high prices of gas.

Romulus City Council members voted to amend the city budget using drug forfeiture dollars, which are collected from the seizure and sale of assets related to narcotics cases.

Forfeiture funds are expended in the community to support anti-drug activities undertaken by the department.

Another law firm hired

Bankruptcy issues related to businesses that have filed for protection, yet owe the city money, have become such a problem that the city saw fit to retain another firm to represent its interests.

In addition a firm hired several weeks ago, the city has hired Auburn Hills-based Kilpatrick & Associates to handle cases that may have a conflict of interest with the first firm hired.

Under the terms of the contract, Kilpatrick & Associates will be paid $150 to $225 per hour as legal counsel.

The firm already represents the Oakland County Treasurer's Office, and has experience dealing with bankruptcy issues as they relate to a municipality's right to collect debts, Seifman said in a letter.

Romulus City Council members voted to approve the contract Monday.

Fire department spends grant

The federal "Assistance to Firefighters Grant" is allowing the Romulus Fire Department to purchase additional safety equipment.

The matching grant, which requires the city to pay 10 percent of the cost of equipment, will fund self-contained breathing apparatuses for firefighters, which will cost a total of $170,051.

Also, an air cascade system will be added to the fire department for a cost of $21,714. An enclosed trailer to move around equipment will also be purchased for $9,181, and four vehicle exhaust extrication systems will be purchased using mostly grant dollars.

Romulus City Council members approved the costs for the equipment Monday.

Flags away

Because Flag Day was on a Saturday, June 14, this year, it was celebrated a day early at the Romulus Senior Center and Romulus Towers. Following the Romulus Seniors Annual Picnic, the Honor Guard from Romulus VFW Post 9568 lowered and replaced the flags at the Romulus Senior Center and the Romulus Towers. The Honor Guard was led by Captain Bill Blackburn and Lieutenant Mike Santamour. There were two representatives from Cub Scout Pack 857 distributing flags for observers to wave.

City will receive $1.4 million

Molly Tippen

The city will get a break from the county now that the distribution of delinquent tax revolving fund checks will be sent to municipalities.

This year, the Wayne County Treasurer's Office will pay $1.46 million to the city, which will help provide services to residents.

"Obviously, we need the money, and we're glad they're sending it along to us," said Mayor Alan Lambert.

"We are paying our bills, but it's tight right now because of the economy in Michigan."

Delinquent tax revolving checks are made up of overdue funds owed to the county by individual taxpayers or businesses that are collected by the county. The money is then reimbursed to the city.

"I wasn't aware they were sending the money, but it's good news," Lambert said.

This year, the money couldn't

"We are paying our bills, but it's tight right now because of the economy in Michigan."

Mayor Alan Lambert

have come soon enough.

City council members last month approved a lean budget of about $24 million. But to balance the books on the 2007-08 year, the city had to remove $2 million from the rainy day fund to keep the city afloat.

Tax dollars are generally the biggest portion of the municipal general fund puzzle, and when people are unable to pay, municipalities are affected. Operating the most needed services often represent top expenses for a city. In Romulus, the five top expenditures for the city are police, which will cost the city $9 million; fire, which will cost $2.5 million; buildings and grounds, which will cost $2.4 million; fund transfers, which will cost $899,525 and recreation, which will cost $755,552.

The major source of revenue is property taxes, of which the city expects to collect $10.9 million.

The tax check - while welcome - will not solve all of the city problems because there will likely be more delinquencies as more tax foreclosures take place in the city. The money is expected to go to the rainy day fund to partially reimburse the account for the $2 million that had to be re-allocated for 2007-08.

"That money needs to be saved," Lambert said.

The money will help the city if there are state shared revenue cuts, which won't be known until the governor's office releases a first version of the state budget in about two months.

School security under microscope

Andrea King
Staff Writer

Security still seems to be a major issue at Belleville High School.

Paraprofessionals at the school said they have concerns with the security guards at the school and the way the school halls were patrolled last year. They also told school officials that they do not believe that security guards are the answer to disciplinary problems at the school.

School officials, however, like Assistant Principal Larry Warren, disagreed.

"The security guards are specially trained. They do initially walk the halls together, but then they split-up, meet-up later and discuss what they've seen," Warren told the school board members at a recent meeting. "They're visible in the halls and they don't try to intimidate the students, but they do try to get to know them."

"So I see the importance of them (security guards) at the school," he added. "I would like to see it continue and also see the paraprofessionals continue to do what they're trained for. The security guards know what to look for and time warrants we have them, we need that."

School board members approved the request for two security guards at Belleville High School for the 2008-2009 school year. The proposal includes a start time of about 7 a.m. with work for a full school day, a copy of background checks, drug screening tests and, a condition that allows for the removal of any security personnel who is not following security procedures or who is acting in an

Casino vote to take place

City officials and jobless residents are waiting to learn if a congressional vote this week will allow an Indian casino to open in Romulus.

Mayor Alan Lambert said he was informed by Rep. John Dingell's (D-Dearborn) office late last week that a vote would be called for on June 25 by Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi.

Whether the vote comes down in favor of casino proponents or individuals that have lined up against a gaming hall, the final tally will likely be a permanent answer to the casinos question in the city.

"We thought that the vote would not take place until after the fourth of July, but the earlier the better," said Lambert.

"At least we'll know where we're headed," he added.

The final vote was not available by publication deadline.

The process of building a casino in Romulus progressed earlier this year when the U.S. House Natural Resources Committee advanced a bill that would allow the land claim by the Indian Tribe to build a casino on land not deemed a reservation in Romulus and Port Huron.

A delegation of Romulus casino supporters testified about the economic development aspects of a casino Feb. 5 in front of the Resources Committee to make the point that the state needs jobs to replace manufacturing jobs that have left the state.

Although there is support for a casino from Dingell and other elected officials like Rep. Candace Miller (R-Macomb County) and Sen. Carl Levin (D-Michigan), others believe another casino would cut into the dedicated revenue stream Detroit gets from the three casinos there.

Officials from Detroit, including Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick and Rep. Carolyn Cheeks Kilpatrick (D-Detroit), testified against the measure on Feb. 5 as well.

Right now city leaders are confident the House will approve the legislation.

"We think this is going to be a close vote, and we know it's going to be a fight," Lambert said. "But I think it will favor us in the end."

There is a possibility that if the bill is amended, the casino would not be able to come to the city, Lambert said.

Approval of the bill would settle a long-standing land claim by bands of the Chippewa Indians. A casino development would bring at least one 200-room hotel and an additional restaurant and service businesses to cater to gamblers and travelers on site at the Detroit

McNeill hopes new ideas bring creativity, prosperity

Molly Tippen
Editor

Darrell McNeill said his claim to fame is encouraging the City of Taylor to adopt soldiers on board the U.S.S. Taylor, but he said he'd like to add more to his resume.

McNeill, a lifelong resident of Taylor, is seeking a two-year term as a State Representative for District 22. He said he's seeking election because he believes legislators need to work more effectively to restore Michigan to prosperity.

"When you look at what happened last year – the state was almost shut down (because of the budget) – that would have been devastating to residents and the state in general," he said. "I don't think there's a lot of cooperation up there, and I think we can do better as a state."

McNeill said his platform is based on job development, discouraging overzealous taxation on businesses, increasing sheriff's patrols throughout the district and discouraging students from dropping out of high school.

"My top priority would be creating jobs – we need to get people back to work," he said. "It ties in with my second priority – which is making sure business taxes are not overly punitive."

Because businesses are now taxed differently, McNeill said some are having issues with the new structure, which is preventing them from giving jobs to residents badly in need of employment.

"We need to, in some cases, roll back business taxes, and provide an explanation (of state tax policies) to businesses," he added.

Sheriff's patrols are a valuable part of county law enforcement activities because they assist cash-strapped local agencies, McNeill said.

Curbing the dropout rate is another cause for McNeill.

"There are some things that the state can do about the dropout rate, which really hurts high school students who will go on to look for jobs," he said. McNeill said he's like to see more participation from schools systems in actively preventing students from dropping out, and said raising the minimum dropout age of 16 years old may be in order.

One business McNeill would like to see open in Michigan is a theme park.

"You hear people say they want to go to parks like Cedar Point in Ohio," he said. "It's a low-cost form of entertainment, and we don't have anything like that in Michigan, and I'd like to see that change."

McNeill first got involved in politics when he asked the City of Taylor if the city could adopt the U.S.S. Taylor, and the soldiers on the ship.

"I know the ship was not named after the city, but I think it was a good exercise – especially for young people – to understand the sacrifices made by the military," he said.

After the ship was adopted, care packages from the schools and from other groups in Taylor provided cards, letters and other necessities for the soldiers.

McNeill has spent his career in the telecommunications industry. He was first hired by Taylor-based McLean-Hunter Cable, which was eventually acquired by Philadelphia-based Comcast Cablevision.

Currently, McNeill is a customer service supervisor at the Michigan Avenue office, which is located in the city of Wayne.

McNeill is facing four challengers for the seat, which is being vacated by State Rep. Hoon-Yung Hopgood, who is leaving because of term limits.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Book Club in full swing

The Romulus Public Library monthly book club continues to meet the second Monday of each month from 7-8:15 p.m.

Refreshments will be served.

Book discussions are free and open to all age 18 and up. Participants need not register in advance.

The library will have copies of the books, or staff members will assist readers in getting an inter-library loan copy.

The remaining books that will be discussed include: A Wrinkle in Time by Madeline L'Engle on July 14; and Pontoon - A Novel of Lake Wobegon by Garrison Keillor.

The Romulus Public Library is located at 11121 Wayne Road. For more information, call the library at (734) 942-7589.

Golf outing on tap

The Mayor's Drug Task Force Golf Outing will take place Friday, July 11.

The Mayor's Drug Task Force is a non-profit organization comprised of business and civic leaders. Together, they have accepted the on-going mission to keep the community drug-free and children safe from the harmful effects of substance abuse.

The outing will take place at the Gateway Golf Club, located at 33290 Gateway Dr., Romulus. The event will kick off with an 8 a.m. shotgun start followed by lunch at the turn and dinner. Those interested in joining the event, or who need more information, are asked to call Kristin Irwin at (734) 955-4123.

Romulus will have fireworks

Romulus residents will be able to enjoy fireworks this Fourth of July.

The fireworks will begin to pop at dusk on July 4 at Elmer Johnson Park, on Ozga Road.

For more information, call Romulus Parks and Recreation at (734) 941-865.

Van Buren Fireworks

Van Buren Township will host their annual fireworks show at dusk on Saturday at the Beck ball fields in the township. A DJ and Gloworks will also be there, too.

For more information contact the recreation department at (734) 699-8921.

Van Buren schools to seek millage

Andrea King
Staff Writer

The Van Buren Public School District could ask voters to approve a 2.98 millage for the Belleville High School bond.

School board of trustees approved a millage rate recommendation Monday, which projects a negative 3 percent taxable value growth for four years, followed by six years at zero and 1 percent growth thereafter, which produces an estimated millage of 2.98.

Superintendent of Schools Pete Lazaroff said it was the most conservative scenario and the millage will be lower if the drop in property value is not as severe as anticipated.

"We're looking at the next few years to be bleak, which is why we're suggesting this," he said.

"In January and February we first ran the numbers on the proposed bond issue so we're trying to use conservative numbers," he added. "It's (taxable value growth) negative 1.49 now."

Officials went through seven different options when looking at taxable value growth. One projects a zero percent taxable value growth for five years, followed by a 1 percent growth thereafter, which produces an estimated millage of 2.65; the second option projects zero growth for seven years, 1 percent growth after and an estimated 2.68 millage. For scenario three, its a negative 1.5 percent growth for five years followed by five years at zero growth, 1 percent growth after for a 2.85 millage.

Options four, five and seven would all have a negative 3 percent growth. Option four would be for two years, followed by eight years at zero and then 1 percent after for an estimated millage of 2.90; option five would be for three years, followed by seven years at zero and 1 percent after to produce an estimated millage of 2.92. The last option—seven—would be for five years, followed by five years at zero and 1 percent after, which produces an estimated millage of 3.07.

"After scenario six, the next conservative estimate would be option five and four," said Lazaroff. "At this time I'm not comfortable with option seven, which requires above 3 mills."

"I will also re-run proposed growth rates for the sinking fund," Lazaroff added. "Because of the negative growth in property value, the projected sinking fund revenue will be lower than we originally thought when we ran the table back in January."

Questions about suspect linger

Unanswered questions involving a Westland man charged with murder recently prompted a judge to postpone proceedings until additional competency testing is complete.

Timothy Joseph Catalano, 45, was in court at the 18th District Court in Westland last Thursday for preliminary hearing on a first-degree murder for allegedly shooting his long-time girlfriend, 44-year-old Tammy Susalla of Westland, last August.

However, Judge C. Charles Bocos of the 18th District Court in Westland ultimately agreed to adjourn the preliminary hearing for 45-year-old Catalano until Sept. 4 to allow for further evaluation and therapy at the Center for Forensic Psychiatry (CFP) due to conflicting expert testimony.

"The court has already made a ruling that the defendant is in fact competent to stand trial," said Bocos. "I am not going to reverse that finding here today."

Instead, he said that Catalano would be sent back to the CFP and essentially treated like a new referral.

"It's almost like we're back to square one," said Bocos.

His decision was prompted, in part, by concerns raised by defense attorney Richard Monash that Catalano, who is deaf, had been unable to communicate at a level where he was able to work with his lawyers and participate in his defense. It was a familiar argument and one that Monash had made when Catalano was originally deemed competent to stand trial by Bocos on May 15. Marc Sholder, chief clinician at the Center of Forensic Psychiatry, testified at that time that after working with Catalano, he believed the defendant was able to understand the legal process. Prior to his treatment at the center, Catalano had been deemed incompetent to stand trial due to "linguistic and cognitive deficits" stemming from his condition. Those early reports also indicated that he could likely become capable of standing trial with additional treatment.

One new addition, however, was the reluctance expressed by three certified sign language interpreters on-site to swear an oath to communicate effectively with Catalano, with one noting that the defendant was having trouble understanding what was going on due to language barriers and that he had previously simply gone through the motions of comprehension.

"If I can't get an interpreter to take an oath, I can't conduct an exam," said Bocos.

However, Sholders questioned what purpose the referral would serve and expressed doubts about the validity of the competency concerns.

"He was competent as far as I am concerned when he was at the Center for Forensic Psychiatry," said Sholders.

Both Bocos and the prosecuting attorney on the case also questioned whether the lack of comprehension alluded to could potentially be feigned before the judge agreed to refer the case back to the CFP.

The matter will return to 18th District Court on or before Sept. 4, depending on when the treatments are completed, for preliminary hearing. At that hearing, the burden will be on the prosecution to convince a judge that there is sufficient evidence that a crime was committed and that the person accused committed the crime to warrant further legal action.

Due to the nature of the case, no bond has been set.

If an individual is convicted of first-degree murder, the penalty is a mandatory life sentence to prison.

Residents give 30 pints of blood

Meghan Chatham
Staff Writer

Area residents rolled up their sleeves on Monday to help support the American Red Cross as part of the annual 'Battle of the Badges' blood drive in Westland.

The event, which took place at the Melvin G. Bailey Recreation Center, pitted Westland Police Department supporters against Westland Fire Department supporters in a friendly rivalry to see which group could collect the most blood. It is one of 43 such competitions scheduled to take place throughout the region.

"The fire department was victorious once again," said Capt. John Adams of the Westland Fire Department.

Between the two groups, more than 30 pints of blood were ultimately collected with several more would-be donors refused due to health issues such as high blood pressure. The trophy—a golden blood collection bag—will be officially presented to the department during the July 7 meeting of the Westland City Council.

It's particularly a challenge now, Tuohey said, since turnout rates throughout the area are at 50 percent or less of what the organization would expect.

Metropolitan Airport.

Estimates indicate a casino would bring about 3,000 jobs to Wayne County, and would provide a dedicated revenue stream of $4 to $10 million annually.

If approved, the casino operators would have to complete the city planning process. Lambert said that if an approval is granted, he believes ground would be broken sometime in 2009.

But if it's denied, or altered, it could be the end of the line for a Romulus casino. Changes could made at the 11th hour that would require a casino to be built on land farther away from Detroit, effectively cutting Romulus out of the loop.

Lambert said the city would be informed when the vote takes place, and if any changes were written into it that would impact the city.

If it's approved by the house, the bill would then move to a tougher vote in the Senate, where there's more opposition for the bill.

Romulus voters approved a potential casino after a special election in December 2003.

are working properly, according to the proposal. Bids are due at 2 p.m. on July 23 and will be publicly opened at the same time that day.

According to Belleville High School Principal Sheila Brown, the past security guards had about 250 hours of training in male/feminine issues, restraint and mainly conflict resolution.

"I recently got back from a security conference and I kept being asked how much security we have at the school and how many school resource officers we have," she said. "There was not one other school that didn't have a full-time school resource officer and security guards. People were shocked when I told them we didn't, because at the time we didn't."

"We school officials are the first responders, but we need all the help we can get," she added.

Contributors showed real ‘American’ spirit

Sometimes, you can just tell when something was meant to be.

Things were looking a little gloomy on Monday afternoon as Wayne officials cast a nervous gaze skyward. Thunder crackled and lightning sparked; rain threatened and eventually soaked the streets and Attwood Park, where the fireworks show was scheduled to take place a few hours later.

“I’m always optimistic,” City Manager John Zech said when called about the show near 5 p.m. He didn’t want to call it off unless it was absolutely necessary.

Fortunately, the weather improved, the sun came out and so did Wayne families.

The show, put together in about a week, went off without a hitch and for a time Wayne residents were treated to a patriotic display that brought them back to simpler, better times.

Neighbors stood in their yards, talking and joking. Families trickled into the park to get a better view. The amazed ‘ooh’s’ and ‘aahs’ of children filled the night.

It was a good thing.

We’d be remiss in not thanking the many people who came together to make this event happen on such short notice. Cathy Cronin at Oakwood Annapolis Hospital should probably be at the front of the line: it was a question she posed that got the whole thing rolling. She volunteered—on the hospital’s behalf—to put up the first $5,000 toward the show, which was not scheduled to take place because of budget cuts.

Other companies followed suit: Maple Manor, Law Auto Sales, EQ Resource Recovery, Russo Industries and Weiser Recycling. There will no doubt be more by the time the final numbers are tallied.

The kudos may begin there, but they don’t end there. The city staff—particularly the police department—deserves a lot of credit for rallying in a short time frame and making sure the event provided a family atmosphere. The Parks and Recreation Department, too, for coming up with a plan that ensured a successful night. The Wayne City Council members should be thanked, as well, for having the foresight to approve the event to begin with and recognizing the importance of this tradition in the City of Wayne.

There are plenty of patriotic events taking place within the next few weeks as we all gather to celebrate our biggest national holiday. Let’s take time to enjoy them all and remember some of the great things about our country: good neighbors, good communities and good fun.

School contract benefits everyone

A ‘done deal’ in the Northville Public School District apparently wasn’t etched in stone after all.

Northville School Board members voted Tuesday night to approve a new contract with the Teamsters union; the contract included enough concessions—both in salary and benefits—to close the door on a proposal to privatize some district services.

That it is, and it’s good for the district employees and—in a wider sense—the State of Michigan, as well. The last thing anybody wanted to see was long-term employees face an uncertain future with an out-of-state company contracted by the district.

Board President
Joan Wadsworth

The contract saves more than 140 jobs and, perhaps more importantly, the family atmosphere opponents of the privatization plan lauded as one of the best parts about Northville schools.

The sad part, however, is that it had to come to this to begin with. If there is any clearer indication that the school funding formula in Michigan needs to be fixed, it is that school boards will have to look more and more into issues like this, and employees will increasingly have to give up more and more.

Make no mistake, this, like the annexation legislation pending in the Legislature, is not just a Northville Public Schools issue. Like other school officials, they’ve done a more than admirable job in reducing costs without impacting classroom activities; they’ve cut and trimmed and eaten into their budget reserves as much as they can and only went down this road because they felt they had no other choice.

There needs to be greater long-term balance in school funding; additional investment is needed to ensure that our children will be competitive in the global market and employers will see a top notch batch of potential employees as they weigh their business decisions.

For now, though, it’s good enough to congratulate both sides on coming to a successful conclusion and ensuring the Northville district remains one big, happy family.

Doing the right thing - dangerously

State Sen. Bruce Patterson (R-Canton) knew he was taking a chance last week.

Patterson, a steadfast Republican, felt forced to vote with the opposing party on his annexation legislation—among other things—in order to do the right thing for his district and the State of Michigan in general. The 414-acre Northville Psychiatric Hospital property is in jeopardy of being annexed to the City of Livonia, and township residents and officials can’t do much about it.

Patterson said he knew he would face serious repercussions from the Republican Party if he tried to force the vote and even predicted he would be ostracized for it.

The thing is, he did it anyway, and he deserves some credit for that.

The reason it was such a courageous move is that Patterson probably doesn’t consider his career over.

He’ll be term-limited out of the Senate in two years, but I’m sure he’ll want another role after that and he’ll most likely need the support of the Republican Party to get there.

Such a public break might make things uncomfortable for the party—and for him—but the way I see it, the Republicans only have themselves to blame for the rift to begin with.

There’s no reason these bills, which would provide townships with greater protection against annexation, have been held up so long—other than one: the main gripe the average citizen has against politics to begin with, that special interest groups have flooded Republican party coffers with money in hopes of one day influencing a decision.

Campaign finance reports show that Bob Schostak, in some form or another, has contributed thousands to the Senate Republican Campaign Committee. Ronald Weiser, founder of McKinley Associates—a national real estate investment company—has given thousands to various Republican interests in Michigan dating back several years, too.

The thing that really surprises me about this, though, is not necessarily the inactivity Republicans other than Patterson have shown on it, though, but the reasons they’ve given.

Some have said it’s a Northville issue. Others have said it’s difficult because it pits township rights against economic development.

I think an average, test-fearing third grader could come up with something better than that to stay home from school.

I haven’t broken out my Michigan map lately, but I’m positive there is more than one township in Michigan. Filing it under an economic development dispute is a bit of a stretch, too. No elected official in their right mind would turn aside development these days, but no elected official in his or her right mind would let a developer come into their community and dictate their project, either.

That’s what this is about, providing equality for township government, giving them the ability to do their job—to plan for a balanced, vibrant community—and to give them the power to stand up to the bullies along the way.

These are things that don’t stop at the borders of Northville Township. It’s an outdated law that needs to be changed and the Republicans should act on it—or at least come up with some better excuses as to why they are bowing to the pressure of special interest groups.

Education is key to recovery of our state economy

Michigan is at a crossroads. Times are tough and we are facing real challenges. To get Michigan back on track, we must tackle these challenges head-on by giving our residents the tools they need to succeed in a 21st Century global economy. States that invest in their residents are magnets for 21st Century jobs, and states that invest in their residents succeed.

The young children who traverse our hallways today are the workers and leaders of the 21st Century, and we must prepare them for what lies ahead. In recent years, the job of educating our children has become more difficult as schools and teachers struggle to do more with less. An alarming number of teachers have been laid off, resulting in overcrowded classrooms. Computers and technology, which factor prominently in today’s workplace, become outdated at a rapid pace. With many schools lacking funding for new textbooks, students must make do with outdated materials. And as funding for supplies dwindles, many teachers use money out of their own pockets to purchase the materials they need for their classes.

In these tough economic times, it is even more necessary to protect our schools from deeper cuts. Tough times call for tough choices.

While some lawmakers have tried to balance the state budget on the backs of our schoolchildren and educators, others understand the need to invest in our schools. Last fall when it came time to balance the budget, I made a very easy decision. I refused to support budget cuts that would have gutted our most essential services, including education, and instead made common-sense cuts that will not further increase class sizes and rob our schools of the resources they need.

These proposed drastic cuts would have had devastating consequences for our schools and our children. I firmly believe that we cannot afford to sacrifice funding for education. Our children’s future, and the future of Michigan, both hinge on our children receiving a high-quality education.

The global economy that we live in will only intensify the competi-

Northville official is named ‘Township Clerk of the Year’

Scott Spielman
 Editor

Northville Township Clerk Sue Hillebrand has another title to add to her resume. The long-time elected official and certified master clerk was named Township Clerk of the Year last week by the Michigan Association of Municipal Clerks. “It’s an honor to be recognized by your peers,” said she. “It’s very humbling.” Hillebrand was first elected into office in 1992, back when the position was a part-time post. Since then she and her staff have overseen countless changes in election laws as the township population has boomed and the government offices relocated to township hall. Township Manager Chip Snider said he was appreciative of all she had done in what he called the most important role in the township. “She’s done a good job,” he said. Township Supervisor Mark Abbo agreed. “(She) is probably one of the best clerks in the state,” he said. “We’re very fortunate to have her.” Hillebrand was actually a candidate for the township clerk of the year for the past several years, but declined the nomination because she served on the board of the association. It is based on years of experience, demonstration of greater-than-average competence in the position, activity in county/state/national associations and a demonstrated interest in improving professional and personal skills and in the advancement of the clerk’s profession, according to Lisa Hathaway, chair of the award committee. State Rep. Marc Corriveau (D-Northville) said Hillebrand has shown all of that and more. “The respect she’s earned is not limited to this board,” he said. “It goes all the way to Lansing” Hillebrand said she was honored by the award, but couldn’t take all the credit. “I’ve got a great staff backing me up,” she said. “They deserve a lot of credit” tion for jobs as we head further into the 21st Century. The students of today will not only be competing with other Michigan students, but they’ll be competing with workers from all over the world. That’s why it is essential that they get the best education possible. It’s a known fact that businesses seek out areas that have a well-educated and highly skilled workforce when they are looking to relocate and expand. In order to attract good-paying jobs to Michigan, we must be able to offer companies what they want—a top-notch, well-trained workforce and it all begins in the classroom. The best way to move Michigan forward is to invest in our children and give them the education they need to succeed. ## Junior Miss Michigan Junior Miss and Plymouth resident Erin Wheeler is greeted as she arrives in Mobile, AL to compete with young women from all 50 states for the title of America Junior Miss as part of the annual America’s Junior Miss Scholarship Program. Contestants are judged based on academics, talent, poise, fitness and interview. Wheeler will be performing a theatre jazz routine to the song “Don’t Rain on my Parade”. The Junior Miss program is a college scholarship program for high school seniors and is the oldest scholarship program for high school women in the United States. Finals night for America’s Junior Miss Program will begin at 8 p.m. on Saturday and can be seen on <http://www.nbc15online.com>.

Safety first

Elementary school crossing guards of the Van Buren Public School District were honored recently for helping to keep students safe. District officials noted during the presentation that the crossing guards are “out doing their jobs not only when it is sunny, but also during rain, sleet, snow, hale and freezing weather. They are truly unsung heroes in the children’s lives.” Guards recognized include: Cathy Gray of Tyler and Rawsonville schools (pictured with Wayne County Commissioner Kevin McNamara), Jacqui Johnson of Rawsonville, Tina Phillips of Rawsonville, Mary Talaga of Edgemont and Kathy Wade of Tyler.

Music in the Park continues

Andrea King
Staff Writer

The Music in the Park concert series is already under way, and the musical entertainment will continue throughout the summer.

The annual concert event will take place each Sunday afternoon at Victory Park in downtown Belleville, located at the “Five Points” area of the city. Performers will start at 3 p.m. every Sunday until August.

This year performers include: the Belleville Community Band, Kevin Kammeraad, the Belleville Community Chorus with the Belleville Brass, Dan’Ree, Billy Brandt & Jack Jill, Acoustic Stories, Chris Solano and Steve Berkemeier.

Carla Gibson, music committee chair for the Belleville Area Council for the Arts, said the group has tried to make it a balanced and assorted schedule for everyone to enjoy.

“Some of them I’ve worked with and some of the performers are new, but we ended up with a diverse selection,” she said.

Kevin Kammeraad—children’s concert—will take place Sunday with a fun and interactive show that will include poetry, puppetry and music.

“This is especially for kids,” said Gibson. “He and his wife are educators, they’ve created books and activity guides, too, so he incorporates Michigan history, but in a quirky, off the wall type way. I look forward to that for the kids.”

The Belleville Community Chorus with the Belleville Brass will take the stage on July 6, while Dani’Ree will perform the following week on July 13. The smooth and understated Dan Goree and Craig Tyner will play some of the world’s favorite classic soul, Motown and easy listening, according to organizers.

The award winning acoustic folk and country duo—Billy Brandt & Jill Jack—will perform on July 20 and, Acoustic Stories will follow on July 27.

“It’s classic rock covers using acoustic guitars and one of the premier multi-percussionists in Michigan,” said Gibson.

Chris Solano will perform his award winning Elvis and Buddy Holly tributes on Aug. 3, taking the audience back to the 50s and the early days of rock ‘n’ roll

The Belleville Community Band will follow on Aug. 10 for a second show. Steve Berkemeier will end the series on Aug. 17 with something for listeners of all ages. He will combine an impressive catalog of original songs with a wide selection of popular music ranging from classic to country hits, Gibson said.

“It’s an enjoyable afternoon, atmosphere and it’s in a park setting,” she said. It’s different from a festival or a club, but it’s a wonderful afternoon.”

A food vendor may also be a part of the series this year, to include refreshments and hot dogs. In case of rain, concerts will take place at the First United Methodist Church fellowship hall on Charles Street in Belleville. For more information about the concert series, contact the Belleville Area Council For the Arts at (734) 697-8123.

New Romulus football coach readies for season

Jeff Novak
 Staff Writer

The Romulus Eagle varsity football team didn't win a game last year, but new head coach Keith Wittkopp hopes he can turn things around.

The 33-year-old coach and biology teacher has plenty of experience—including two years as the head Junior Varsity coach at Romulus. He led the junior Eagles squad to a 6-3 season last year.

Before landing at Romulus three years ago, Wittkopp was a JV assistant on a state caliber program in Ithaca New York while his wife finished up postdoctoral work. The varsity team there went to the state playoffs before losing to the team Mike Hart, recent graduate of the University of Michigan, played on. Even before that Wittkopp gained valuable experience as the head junior varsity coach and as a varsity defensive coordinator at a small school in Wisconsin where he had a total of 14 players on his team.

Although all of his travels had gained him valuable coaching experience, Wittkopp said there was none better gained than the years spent playing defensive end at Westland John Glenn under famed Coach Chuck Gordon.

"That was probably the best experience of the group," he said. "Seeing how he ran a program for 30 years was amazing. Year after year he had winning programs, and every year he could adjust the program to the talent level that he had. It was nice watching that."

In his senior year—the 1992-93 season—the Rockets went 7-2 but failed to make the playoffs under the old set of Michigan High School Athletic Association guidelines. The next year Glenn went to the state championship.

He earned a Bachelor's degree in biology at the University of Michigan so he could be a scientist. After tutoring students and deciding he didn't like working in a laboratory, he attended Eastern Michigan University to get his teaching certificate.

He got married and went to Wisconsin in 1999 so his wife could go to graduate school, resulting in the brief coaching stint and on to New York in 2002.

Once his wife accepted a professorship at the University of Michigan the couple landed back in the area in 2005. He's been teaching biology and living planet classes at Romulus high ever since.

"I got to see different programs, different styles of coaching, different offences, and different defenses and I think I'm able to draw from all of those and bring everything together," he said.

After second-year varsity head Matt Ladach defected to Northville to coach, Wittkopp threw his hat in the ring to take over the program.

Romulus Athletics Director Mark Woodson liked what Wittkopp brought to the table.

"He's been in the program the last two years," Woodson said. "He's a hard-working person and is good with the kids and they like him. He brings a lot of experience. It also helps having him in the same building as the players so he can stay on top of them—something that Matt (Ladach) couldn't do being a teacher at Northville."

Wittkopp painfully watched the varsity team slide from a 5-4 record in 2006—just missing the playoffs—to 0-9 last season.

"I don't think we were as prepared as we should have been," he said of last season. "I would have liked to have seen a little more conditioning and little more weight training and more guys showing up. It didn't seem like the players had as much dedication as they should have."

This year, he vows, is going to be a different story, starting with complete overhaul of the offense and running a 5-2 defense over the 4-3.

"Certainly we're going to make sure that the guy are better prepared," he said. "We're going to change the offense a little bit, which is where we seemed to struggle last year—we didn't put too many points on the board, and we're going to definitely be conditioned."

Wittkopp comes from a power-running background but brought in an offensive coordinator that has a spread background.

"We're going to merge everything together and do a little bit of everything," he explained. "With our talent pool we will try to play to our strengths. On defense I think—at least this year—we will play to our strengths of trying to stop the run and forcing teams to pass where we have the talent to pick off balls and get some touchdowns."

This season won't be easy with the transition to a new coach and the graduation of 20 seniors off of last year's roster and facing teams like Inkster, Robichaud, Dearborn Edsel Ford, Melvindale, Garden City and Highland Park in the Mega Blue Conference and Southgate Anderson, Ypsilanti and Plymouth in non-league contests.

To make the switch easier there should be

New head varsity football coach Keith Wittkopp hopes to turn the ailing Romulus Eagles around this year.

26 juniors returning this year with a majority of them having played and Wittkopp has a slue of players off of his 6-3 team stepping up to the varsity.

"Those (junior varsity) guys know what to expect from me," Wittkopp said. "The juniors next year had me for two years and the seniors next year had me for one year so they certainly know what to expect from me. They know I mean business. From there, that should lead us into being successful."

Plus, Romulus is known for its deep pool of talented running backs, receivers and quarterbacks.

He has both varsity quarterbacks from last year, Ondre Mathews and Rodney Colfield, returning. Mathews and Colfield each had valuable starting time last year plus his two JV quarterbacks, Antonio James and James Givens, are among the several JV kids moving up to the varsity level.

Regardless of the type of program set in place, the coaches at the helm of it and the players that make the roster, there are still several other challenges the Eagles will face this season. The biggest one is convincing the kids that his way is the right way, according Wittkopp.

"The senior group has seen three different coaches in their career," he said. "So they're coming in with some baggage and I have to convert them around to my side. We have to show them that we can be successful."

Romulus can officially start full team practices on Aug. 11. The Eagles' first contest is at Southgate at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 28. The Eagles' first home game is scheduled against Garden City at 7 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 5.

"I'm just excited and ready for the season to happen," he said.

Parents...

Every course in school — and every lesson in life — has a learning curve, a time when we discover the basics and develop our own skills of inquiry, study and mastery.

In the Taylor School District, we start your child on that learning curve at the earliest possible age — preschool — and then layer the knowledge, relationships and skill sets necessary for them to be successful.

In school and in life.

You have a choice when it comes to your child's education.

Your best choice is here.

The Taylor School District is now accepting applications from non-residents for tuition-free enrollment in grades K-8 for the fall 2008 school year.

SIXTH GRADE ACADEMY

Last year, we introduced an exciting new concept to our district — and it's quickly become a gem in the community: A stand-alone school for our sixth graders.

This technology-based facility offers an intensive curriculum while providing our young people a chance to adjust to the differences between elementary school and middle school.

PRESCHOOL & KINDERGARTEN

Our centralized Preschool Program provides the best possible jump start to your child's education. And if you follow up with All-day Kindergarten, your child will have the best possible start on their learning curve. (Preschool is available to current Taylor district residents only.)

OUR ELEMENTARY GRADES

We reach out to children at an early age, using hands-on methods to teach science and math — and unique inquiry methods to teach social studies.

This approach can be found right through to fifth grade. And then it's on to the Sixth Grade Academy.

EXCEEDING STANDARDS

Finally, once again, all of our elementary and middle schools have achieved Adequate Yearly Progress, the state's benchmark for student achievement, which means our entire district has met AYP.

In addition, Taylor has earned NCA accreditation for our middle schools, at both high schools and four of our elementary schools.

Plymouth dealer helps bring back boat race

Ashley Dobos
Staff Writer

A major race will reach a major milestone this year

The American Power Boat Association (APBA) is bringing the annual Gold Cup race to the area from July 11-13.

The “Super Bowl” of powerboat racing, is presented by the Detroit River Regatta Association (DRRA) and sponsored by the Chrysler Jeep Superstores Advertising Association. It will reach a historic milestone – the 100th running of the race. Races will take place on the Detroit River near Belle Isle, July 11-13. There will also be entertainment, offshore boats, and a festival atmosphere. The APBA Gold Cup Final will take place on Sunday, July 13, at 3:30 p.m.

“We’re excited about the next 100 years of speed, power, and tradition in Detroit powerboat racing,” said Tom Bertolini, president of the DRRA.

Unlimited Hydroplanes will be a type of powerboat at the race. These boats have engines that generate about 3,000 horsepower that propel the watercraft to speeds of 200 miles per hour. They can travel the length of a football field in less than a second.

There will also be 15 Catamaran-style Offshore Pro Series Powerboats to enter the race. This is nearly double the amount entered last year. They generate up to 3,700 horsepower and are between 39 and 44 feet in length.

“We look at the Gold Cup as the pinnacle of boat racing and we are proud to bring our Offshore boats to the most historic race course in boar racing,” said Tom Abrams, of Canton. Abrams is the owner/driver of “Reliable Carriers Inc.,” a 39-foot catamaran.

“The Unlimited Hydroplanes and our Offshore Pro Series boats are very different, but we hope to complement the main race event and to bring our fans and support to Detroit,” he added. “It is a little bit like having both Indy cars and NASCAR at the same event.”

Along with the Unlimited Hydroplanes and Offshore Powerboats, there will be some vintage boats as well, including: Jersey Speed skiffs, three-point hydroplanes, fire-breathing Grand Prix hydros, and Superlight Tunnels.

The Superlights will be running on small courses. Part of their attraction is their ability to be both pleasure boats and being able to race in the ocean surf. The Detroit Yacht Club Vintage & Historic Regattas will hold non-competitive runs of vintage boats, represented from every decade. Some boats that will make an appearance are the mahogany unlimiteds of the 1920s, 1960s composites, and even ones from today.

The many drivers of the variety of boats compete for what’s considered the crown jewel by powerboat racers – the APBA Gold Cup. This is the oldest motor sports trophy in the world – dating back to 1904. Tiffany & Co. crafts the cup, and in 2004 its sheen was restored by efforts from the DRRA and supporters.

“The Detroit River is the global epicenter of powerboat racing,” said Bertolini. “It’s fitting that the best trophy is held on the best course in the best city. The Detroit River racecourse is the grandest stage for the fierce competitors vying for the oldest and greatest trophy in motor sports.”

Each year, the winner of the race gets their name put on the trophy. The trophy has grown in size. Since there has not been enough room on the statue for all of the winners’ names, bases have been added.

“Many of the names on the Gold Cup were won here in Detroit,” said Bertolini. “Winning the trophy is the highest honor in powerboat racing. Hydroplane memories for more than a century have been created in Detroit. Hoisting the Gold Cup up as a winner and feeling the spirit of Detroit and the others that have come before you to help make this sport and this track great is an incomparable experience.”

Detroit is the oldest hydroplane race site in the world and has hosted more than 80 races. The First Gold Cup race to run on the Detroit River was in 1916. That year Miss Minneapolis won. Back then, the site of the next year’s race was determined by the winner that year.

“Miss Detroit” was the first Detroit entry to win the Gold Cup in 1915, driven by J. Milot and J. Beebe, who averaged 48.5 mph. The following year, Christopher Columbus Smith—a boat builder from Algonac—won the cup with a boat of his own design. He then created a boat building company named Chris Craft.

In 1962 organizers of the race decided they would like to move the race around to different cities, so the APBA gave cities a chance for an open bid and presentation process. Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh formed the Spirit of Detroit Association with local business leaders. This was a volunteer organization set out to preserve hydroplane racing on the Detroit River. The group was able to get Detroit to host 11 races between 1963 and 1992.

Detroit has produced many Gold Cup winners. Among the winners was Lee Schoenith, of Detroit, who was the first person to break 100 mph while driving “Gale V,” owned by his father Miss Chrysler Jeep Unlimited Hydro U-3 will make a run at for glory at the 2008 Chrysler Jeep Superstores Detroit APBA Gold Cup, July 11-13. This marks the 100th year of the race.

Joseph, in 1955 with his speed of 102.5 mph.

A campaign was started in 1988 to move the Gold Cup to Detroit permanently. Detroit always provided facilities in good condition and attracted the largest crowds. The APBA Board of Directors named Detroit the permanent home of the Gold Cup in 1990.

Detroit holds the record for the amount of major Unlimited races in a single year, four in 1949 and 1950. These included the Silver Cup, the Harmsworth Trophy, Detroit Memorial, and the Gold Cup.

This year at the race there will be many new activities and longer hours of operation to keep the summer fun rolling on in. One of the most impressive U.S. Armed Forces’ aircrafts, the FA-18, will be flown by the Navy’s West Coast Super Hornet Demo Team, who will perform flight demonstrations. There will also be interactive video games and 180-degree “Immersa Domes” used during the Navy’s presentation of “Accelerate Your Life Experience.” The domes allow participants to be plunged into a virtual reality experience of the real world of a Navy seaman, complete with the sights, sounds, and smells.

There will also be a free “Camp Jeep” activity, where test demonstration rides will be provided on a Jeep wilderness course in Henderson Park. There will also be a variety of activities for sports fans, presented by the Michigan Hall of Fame. The activities include sports challenges and inflatables, a football obstacle course, a pro-style Wiffle ball batting cage, a full-action video golf simulator, and hockey and lacrosse skill zones in the Family Fun Zone located in the Hydromart. A traveling museum honoring Michigan’s sports heroes will be there as well.

Additional family-oriented activities include a large picnic area, arts and crafts, games, balloon artists, free face painting, and stilt walkers.

“This is the 100th running of the prestigious APBA Gold Cup,” said Jim Schebil, president of the Chrysler Jeep Superstores Advertising Association and president of Fox Hills Chrysler Jeep in Plymouth. “Chrysler Jeep Superstores are especially proud to be a part of this historic event, and to be a part of another great weekend in downtown Detroit as title sponsors. It’s great to support exciting and fun-filled family entertainment events in Detroit.”

General admission buttons for a full weekend of racing are $15 per person all three days, children 12 and under are free in Memorial Annex Park, Henderson Park, and Owens Park. People who purchase buttons have access to the main vending and merchandising area, located behind the grandstand. Those that would like to redeem their button for an upgraded seat can trade it in for a $15 value. The racecourse will be open until 6:30 p.m. on Friday, July 11. This day is “free Friday,” which means viewing from the Waterworks Grandstands is free.

Reserved seating can also be purchased, which ranges from $50-$205 per seat. Other seating choices include the start or finish line, the Judges Stand for $130 per seat, or the Pit Tower for $205 per seat, which offers a private area and the highest view of the course.

Shuttle parking will be available over the weekend as well. Schedule and lot locations are available with detailed maps and photographs at <http://www.gold-cup.com>.

A Living Trust? But Isn't My Will Enough?
Find Out What You Ought to Know About Living Trusts.

You owe it to yourself and your family to find out:

- The right and wrong ways to leave someone an inheritance.
- Why a Will does not avoid a court probate — but rather guarantees it!
- How a court may appoint the person to handle your estate as they see fit!
- Whether a Living Trust is right for you.
- How to protect your assets from nursing home costs.
- How to avoid these problems with proper planning.
- Why your Trust and other documents need to be updated.
- Why you may not owe Estate Taxes.
